Bishop Reinheimer to Ordain The Rev. Kirsch Here Wednesday

First time ordination service has taken place in Addison Fathers Withey and Head, former vicars here to participate with many other diocesan clergy — Public invited.

The Rev. Russell O. Kirsch, minister-in-charge of the Church of the Redeemer, will be advanced to the Sacred Priesthood Wednesday, December 13, in the parish church by the Rt. Rev. Bartel H. Reinheimer, D. D., Bishop of Rochester. The ordination will begin at 10:30 and the public is invited. This will be the first such service ever held here.

An age old ceremony will mark the elevation of Father Kirsch. As the choir sings the ancient ordination hymn, "Lord, pour Thy Spirit from on high, and Thine ordained servants bless," the procession of acolytes, priests, ordinand and Bishop will proceed to the sanctuary. The Very Rev. Donald Elwood, Dean of the Convocation of Bath will read the Preface to the Ordinal which begins, "It is evident unto all men, diligently reading Holy Scripture and ancient authors, that from the Apostles' time there have been these Orders of Ministers in Christ's Church—bishops, priests and deacons."

The ordination sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Thomas Withey, Rector of St. Philip's Church, Belmont, and former Vicar of the Church of the Redeemer. The Rev. Roger Ailing, Rector of Christ Church, Corning, will present the ordinand to the Bishop with these words, "Reverend Father in God, I present unto you this person present, to be admitted to the Order of Priesthood." Then the Bishop, commending the ordinand to the prayers of the congregation, shall say the Litany for Ordinations with the clergy and the people.

Order of Service
The Bishop then proceeds to celebrate the Holy Eucharist. At the conclusion of the Holy Gospel the Bishop will deliver the charge to the ordinand, who placing his hands on the shoulders of the Bishop will kneel for the questioning and the promise of canonical obedience. Then the hymn "Veni, Creator Spiritus" will be sung by the Bishop and priests. Following this, the ordination proper takes place. The Bishop, with the assisting priests, will lay his hands upon the head of

Senior Play 'Green Stockings' Friday Night

This will be one of the biggest weeks in school history for a group of young thespians for this is the week of the Senior Play. The play chosen is a three act comedy "Green Stockings" and concerns a family custom of the younger unmarried girls wearing green stockings at the weddings of older sisters and what happens when one rebels.

The heroine will be played by Ruth Shrewood and the dashing military hero will be Marvin Smith, the unknown Colonel. The young people in the play have been practicing hard and long hours during the past four weeks under the direction of Miss Thelma Albright, faculty advisor and English teacher.

In addition students and members of the faculty have been constructing proper stage equipment for the scenes which are used in the comedy.

The money raised from this venture, the biggest of the year for the students, will be used to help defray expenses of the annual trip to Washington made by the class members. There are 42 in the class and $420 will be needed to aid in financing the trip.

The show will get under way at 8 o'clock Friday night in the high school auditorium. There will be selections by the high school orchestra before the show. A preview of the production will be given at an assembly program Friday morning.

Seniors hope that townspeople, vicinity residents and friends of the school as well as of the students will attend to help swell the treasury of the senior class.

The Findlay College eleven of Findlay, O., will come here Nov. 2 for a game. Other new teams on the schedule are the West Chester, Pa., and Clarion, Pa., State Teachers. A group of business men, whose names will appear next week, contributed to make Main Street as attractive as any of the streets in the county for the holidays. Another group of experts are devoting time to preparing the lights, to be installed as this is being written and read. It is expected the lights will be in place by Thursday or Friday of this week. The plans are being worked out now for the arrangements of the lights.

Returning sons and daughters will be just as proud of the old home town as of their adopted town, for the decorators planning this job are going to make a good job of it. Solicitors for the funds were John Davis and Harry Mullen.

Ad Club Sponsors Window and Home Decoration Idea

This promises to be a colorful Christmas in Addison for with an incentive, home owners and store proprietors are being urged to decorate their homes and windows for the holiday season. The Advertising Club is sponsoring the contest. There is no entry fee and all homes and stores in the village will be eligible as the judges tour the community.

Three impartial judges have been chosen, but will not be announced until the close of the contest when the winners are announced. They will tour every street in the community.

Originality and design as well as colorfulness are the factors the judges will be asked to make their decision upon as it is felt by the committee that quantity of design often does not mean originality and hence everyone is eligible to compete for the prize.

There will be no church or organization prizes as it is the belief of the committee that a group project has an advantage over an individual project and there are not enough groups to set aside a prize for that particular classification.

There will be one major store prize. To make it easy for the merchants and give them an opportunity to display their wares and at the same time, sell them before Christmas, the store window judging will be done the evening of Thursday, December 21. In this way stores can decorate their windows for the week before Christmas and then as demands are made for merchandise in the window, it can be removed in time for Christmas sale.

The home decorations will be judged the night of Sunday, December 24 and as has been said, no entry is required, just decorate. The members of the committee representing the Advertising Club are John B. Davis, Harry Mullen and Milton Crane. Rules of the contest will be announced in a later issue of the Advertiser by the members of the committee.

Then the successful bidder will eat with the woman who prepared the box and after supper an informal program of cards and entertainment will be provided.

The Men's Club of the church is sponsoring the unique affair, the first held in Addison in several years. There is always a great deal of fun at these affairs by the nature of the party for everyone readily mixes and humor is provided by the contents of the boxes and the exchange of names.

AUS Music Group Sponsors Christmas Party

Christmas will be observed Wednesday, December 20, in the high school with an assembly program at 10 o'clock to be given under the auspices of the Music Department. Glenn L. Sprague director of music will be in charge of the music and also of a two act play to be presented. This will be a Christmas play entitled, "Red and the Whoppers." "Red" will be Robert Johnson and "The Whoppers" will be the lies he tells until Christmas time when he starts telling the truth and gets the members of the family in trouble.

The public is invited to attend this assembly program. In addition to the play there will be a Christmas program presented by two acts by the pupils of the first and second grades the high school orchestra and a carol choir from the third through sixth grades.

Heavy Rain Totals More Than November

Arthur E. Miller, government weather observer, reports that a heavy rainfall of 1.18 inches was recorded at the station west of Addison, on Sunday, Dec. 3. This is more water than fell during the entire month of November, as 1.07 inches of precipitation was recorded for the month. As the normal for November is 2.77 inches moisture was less than half what ordinarily comes during this fall month. As 30 inches of the November precipitation was snow, the actual rainfall was only .27 inches, which is doubtless some kind of a record low for November.

SHUMWAY ESTATE —

Frank Shumway, who died recently in this village, died without leaving a will according to papers filed with Surrogate George Pratt this week. A son in law, Elmer D. Christmas Basket Committee Formed Here—Will Need Community Aid Group formed to provide baskets for underprivileged and to prevent duplication of efforts — Many organizations and churches as well as individuals co-operating in plan originated by Mrs. A. G. Stiker and Mrs. H. E. Auringer.

Representatives of nearly every organization in the village attended a meeting on Christmas basket arrangements Monday night in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Amos G. Stiker. Weirae Griller Willis Colburn presided as chairman and he was assisted by E. Dixon Curtis old age investigator for the County Welfare Department.

The plan was originated with Mrs. Stiker and Mrs. Horace Auringer. The idea is to secure lists of all those needing Christmas baskets and providing for them and also to prevent duplication of baskets to the same persons. Monday's meeting was devoted mostly to relief cases and it is expected that many borderline cases, of men and women just managing to get by but not on relief, will be brought to the attention of the committee during the next week or so.

The group officially chose the name Christmas Basket Committee. There were 29 baskets spoken for

Herbert Manson Honored On Birthday Tuesday

Herbert Allison Manson played host to several young friends Tuesday in celebration of his seventh birthday anniversary.

After a happy time with games the youngsters were served refreshments at a table pleasantly decorated in a pink and blue color scheme. Lollipops dressed to represent old-fashioned ladies held the place cards and the favors were snapping mottoes. The center of attraction was, of course, the birthday cake.

Herbert was presented many gifts by his playmates, as follows: Sue Ann Troy, Paul Ward, Barbara Keck, Jack Holmes, Alice Joyce Barr, Lawrence Murray, Bobby Walker, Shirley Christian, Mary Rusby, Jimmy Dominick, Mary Ellen Mullaney, Nicky Adsit, Mary Frances Dinny, John Vine, Angelo Mancini, Peggy Anne Chart, Clayton Moore and Rose Marie Wildrick.

CORRECTION

It was erroneously printed in the November 23rd edition of this paper that a judgment had been taken against Dr. Henry Sanford of Bath by Andrew Tuttle of Woodhull.

The article should have stated that the judgement was taken by Mr. Tuttle against Dr. William Sanford of Bath who was the defendant in this action. This paper is glad to make this correction as Henry Sanford of Bath, was not involved in this case.

Sen. Hammond Entertains Ad Club Members

Senator-elect Chauncey B. Hammond of Elmira proved that Americans can still laugh in spite of world and local conditions as he spoke to members of the Advertising Club and women guests Thursday night. He spoke to the group after a supper served by the Tuxis Club in the Presbyterian Church.

A business meeting followed the supper with President Milton H. Crane in charge. He announced a committee of John B. Davis, Harry Mullen and Carl Rouse to arrange a Christmas window trimming contest and a home decoration contest to be sponsored by the club. An appropriation of $10 was made to the committee.

Harry Mullen was appointed to represent the club at the meeting of the Christmas Basket Distribution Committee of the village which met Monday at Dr. and Mrs. Amos G. Stiker. The next Ad Club meeting, December 13, will be in charge of Will B. Leete.

Mr. Crane then turned the meeting over to past president Ray S. Brown, who in turn presented the speaker. Mr. Hammond has been assemblyman from Chemung county several years and was recently elected to represent the counties of Chemung, Tompkins, Tioga and Schuyler in the state senate.

The speaker gave several anecdotes from his experiences and the experiences of friends which kept his audience in laughter throughout the entire evening. And at the same time he kept to a general theme of the confusion which exists in American life today and closed with an admonition to the women to take a greater interest in politics and help to clean up the mess men have made of it.

Mr. Hammond told of the trials and tribulations of some of the state officials; and read extracts from letters received in Albany, most of them humorous. He asked for sympathetic understanding for officials trying to do a good job against conflicting forces and emotions. Mr. Hammond pointed out, "that government of itself has no money, only that which we contribute to it for it comes from you and me. It is collected from us in order to be brought back to us in the form of shared taxes. Only 67 and one-half per cent of the money sent to Albany comes back."

"In New York State it costs $540 per year to care for criminals and $407 per year to care for those insane and mentally deficient in 24 institutions and waiting lists to take the place of every one of the 74,000 inmates. There is something distorted with our way of living when we teach that education will reduce crime and yet we are constantly increasing the size of our penal institutions."

The prayer before the meal was said by the Rev. Nicholas Cossaboon and the closing prayer was by the Rev. John V. Axtell, who also was song leader. Miss Janet Taylor was piano accompanist.

Watertown, Pa. — Paul Huffman, raised his rifle to shoot a pheasant. The trigger was pulled prematurely and Paul has had to have some new dental work and also received a split in the roof of his mouth for the recoil struck him in the face.

THE HONEST FINNS ATTACKED

Again the forces of greed and despotism have gone on the march in Europe as the guns of Red Russia are turned upon their tiny neighbor, Finland. The armies of Stalin are invading the small northern country while flocks of planes are raining bombs on the heads of the innocent Finns.
The next swift chapter will doubtless see the Communist State absorbing Finland as Germany and Russia absorbed Poland this fall.

One cannot help wondering just how the world at large can deal with such conscienceless groups as the misled people of Japan, Germany and Russia. What can put a stop to sudden abortive movements of strong nations against the weak?
What force can police the world and administer justice among the nations?

We have tried our fling at making the "World Safe For Democracy" by mixing in the World War, and the result should have been a lesson sufficient to last us for at least a century. After the World War an attempt was made to keep perpetual peace through the League of Nations—an organization with which our country did not affiliate. Some blamed our aloofness to the failure of the League, but the result could have been little different had we gone in. For the last war was ended on a note of bitterness and peace was signed under duress of the victors over the vanquished. There was no attempt made to heal the wounds and once the vanquished became strong the will to fight returned.

Russia under the rule of Stalin is the world's greatest jackal. Russia does not match strength with an adversary of nearly equal strength—she gobbles up the carcass another has killed, like Poland, or rushes upon a pigmy like Finland.
Meanwhile Russia has nursed a grudge against Japan for years, yet dares not attack the Japanese in force.

Americans feel particularly sorry for Finland, because the Finns were the only people in Europe honorable enough to pay regularly on the debt they owe this country. While mighty Britain, ancient France and gargantuan Russia repudiated their debts and claimed they could not pay even a small part, Finland has paid each installment as regularly as it fell due. Moreover the little republic scorned the idea of any reduction in the amount to be paid us.

So the most honorable nation in all Europe is attacked by the most cowardly beast in the world.
If Americans have sympathized with Czechoslovakia and Poland they will doubly regret the fate of Finland. One way we might help the Finn's plight would be to deport every alien Russian and German in this country and accept enough Finnish immigrants to take their place.
Surely men as honest as the Finns would make the best type of Americans, and we could be well rid of the Communist and Nazi trash that are cluttering our country in too many places.

ECONOMY FOR DEFENSE

Sentiment for sharp cutting of other government spending to make way for expected increases in defense appropriations at the regular session of Congress appears to be making headway in official circles. Senator Byrnes, one of the majority leaders, is quoted as saying: "I think we are going to find that the people at home are willing to spend all that is needed for national defense, but that they are going to want to cut down on some of the other government spending."

This year more than $1,750,000,000 was appropriated for defense, and it is now believed that an additional deficiency appropriation will be required because of the "emergency" increase made in the army and navy. And men close to Washington affairs estimate that considerably more than $2,000,000,000 will be appropriated for defense purposes in the fiscal year beginning July 1 next.

It should be obvious to the most rampant advocate of government spending that it would be an insane policy to pile new and greatly enlarged defense expenditures on top of our other "deficit expenditures". National security is as much dependent on a sound economic structure at home as it is on battleships and airplanes and tanks.
If necessity forces an increase in our defense appropriations, necessity also requires elimination of non-essential spending in other fields.

The whole federal "emergency" and "relief" structure is alive with waste, duplication of effort, and inefficiency. It is as much the duty of Congress to reduce government costs wherever possible as to provide the gigantic sums which are now apparently needed to build up our military and naval establishments.

CRIME AND SCHOOLS

A few years ago one of the favorite tricks of cartoonists was to make an incongruous drawing labeled "What Is Wrong With This Picture?" Today, if one could sketch upon a huge canvas a graph of the growth of education and educational facilities in the State of New York the most appropriate title one could affix would be this same one of "What Is Wrong With This Picture?" For paralleling the tremendous extension of education to the masses there has been a constant increase in crime throughout the commonwealth.

Figures for state expenditures verify the unvarnished truth of this assertion. As the principle of free education grew in New York the state established normal schools for the better preparation of teachers for lifetime jobs. More and better teachers was the slogan as we poured out huge treasures of tax funds to improve the personnel, while at the same time finer school plants were erected and equipped to take care of more and more children who were yearly going through our high schools. It was a laudable motive behind this attempt to give every boy and girl in the state the advantages of a free high school education. But laudable though the conception of the plan there had been a huge mistake somewhere between the drafting of the blue prints and the completion of the structure. This mistake is hidden somewhere in a story yet to be told, the story of why crime has kept pace in growth with the expansion of education.

Pioneers in education were firmly convinced that enlightenment was to be one of the chief cures for crime. Indeed, this fallacious idea was so fixed that some educators stoutly maintained the cost of extended education could be paid for out of the savings in our crime bill. How gross was their error! Instead of decreasing with the extension of education, crime has shown a parallel increase. As newer and better school houses have been built, so too, newer and better jails have been erected. As the tax bills for education have piled up to mountainous heights, likewise the bills for crime prevention, crime punishment and criminal trials have sky-rocketed to dizzy stratospheres. Today even the most enthusiastic educational theorist does not dare say increase in education is a remedy for crime.

Why this deadly parallel? What reason can there be for the apparent unholy alliance between education and crime?

Why do we donate large sums for boy scout and girl scout work, and yet can notice no increase in growth of character? Why do we saddle the groaning taxpayer with the cost of bigger playgrounds and more elaborate gymnasiums, and reap a larger crop of young criminals, for it is a fact that criminals are younger today than ever before.

RECENTLY PREPARED STATISTICS SHOWED THERE WERE MORE PEOPLE OF NINETEEN CONVICTED OF CRIME THAN ANY OTHER AGE.

These facts show our system of education must be charged with dismal failure. The main objectives toward which we have aimed—real benefit to those educated—have been lost somewhere along this road to better education for the masses.
The chief question is, why have we failed?

The reasons are undoubtedly many and intricate. Yet in the maze of misdirected effort that conceal the causes of our failure are a few, simple reasons which anyone could understand.

Probably the first and most serious cause for failure of education to halt the increase in crime is the failure on the part of some teachers to fully appreciate the fundamental job placed in their hands. For the fundamental job of every teacher should be the installation of correct ideals and the building of character. Dishonesty on the part of a teacher quickly breeds dishonesty in the pupil. Favoritism on the part of the teacher instills in the mind of the pupil distrust of all authority. Lax morality on the part of the teacher is soon found out by the pupil and the idea of a double standard of living flashes to mind.

What ails our schools that crime has increased hand in hand with growth of education? It would be nearly impossible to find all the answers, but enough are apparent to convict us of gross negligence in pursuit of our objective of making better citizens. Nor can this increase in crime be all laid fairly at the door of failure in our education system. When one considers the fact there are hundreds of aliens being supported in our luxurious penal institutions the natural conclusion is that a failure of duty has stopped us from deporting these people.

Still, the problem of crime prevention should be closest to the field of education, for in our schools the boys and girls pass a large part of their time during the formative years of life.
This in itself should be a commanding challenge to our schools to solve the problem of crime prevention.

MEN OF SCIENCE

We're all familiar with men of science, working patiently in shiny laboratories in the never-ending war against disease, plague and famine.
The achievements of these men have been celebrated—in drama, in fiction, and in history.

We're not so familiar with the work of other kinds of "scientists"—a worker who battles other enemies of mankind. That worker is the business man. And his fight is against unemployment, depression and a long list of economic ills that plague a people.

The business man, may fail to achieve his ambitions. So may some individual scientist fail.
But in the final summing up, individual failures are submerged in the tide of progress. Slowly and tortuously, through trial and error, the war against disease wins on many fronts. And, in The first rabbit pie of the season is usually hailed by the family, but as the hunting season wears on, the folks may get tired of rabbit, or any other game, prepared in the usual ways. The homemaker then must turn to the more unusual method of cookery.

Rabbit may be prepared in almost every way that chicken is prepared.
The young and tender animals can be cooked by the quick methods of frying or broiling, but the older ones, like fowl, need long and slow cooking. If first simmered until tender, older rabbits may be fried in butter, made a la king, or used in croquettes, salad or chop suey.

For rabbit chop suey, melt about 3 tablespoons of butter or other fat in a skillet, add 2 cups of shredded onion and a cup of shredded green pepper, and cook the mixture for a few minutes. Then add 2 or 3 cups of shredded cooked rabbit meat and continue the cooking, stir-slightly browned.

Next add 2 cups of shredded cel-curry, and cook for 10 minutes.

Then add 1 cup of soy sauce, 1 teaspoon of mustard, and 1 teaspoon of ketchup, and cook for 10

Rabbit liver paste, served on crackers with tomato juice or other appetizer, is considered a great delicacy. To make it, simmer the livers with salt, fine chopped olives, minced onion, mayonnaise, dashes of tobacco sauce and paprika. Chill this before using.

F. F. A. LOOKING BACKWARD

CHAPTER CHATTER

The Agriculture IV class has been studying the care, management and feeding of the herd bull. Probably no farm animal is held in more disdain than is a bull. However bulls kill a lot more people in this country each year than do bears or other wild animals.

With the advancement of breeding it has become necessary for farmers to retain their herd sires longer. As they grow older the tendency of the bull is to become more unmanageable. Some bulls retain their apparent good nature only to injure or kill their owners without warning.

If one is going to keep a bull after he is three years old or even before in many cases one should have a safety bull pen of some sort in which the bull can be kept without the owner having to expose himself to dangers of the bull. A large number of different types of safety bull pens can be constructed.
Plans may be obtained from the farm bureau office or from the College of Agriculture at Cornell University.

A breeding ranch should also be constructed to use with the safety bull pen. Plans for these may be obtained from the above sources also.

Lack of exercise has ruined more bulls for breeding purposes than any other thing. When a bull becomes hard to manage to exercise him is a dangerous and difficult task. Many types of devices have been suggested however for the average farmer not many of these can be used.

The most practical method of exercising a bull is to have a yard connected with the safety bull pen.
If a key is thrown into this yard the bull will exercise himself by butting the key. By this method the bull can be kept in good condition without being dangerous to his keeper.

Many farmers believe that a bull should not be fed silage because it may lower his breeding power.
Silage is low in protein and total digestible nutrients and dry matter because of this fact a bull is given too much silage he does not get the proper amount of nutrients from the roughage. This may cause him to be a poorer breeder than he otherwise would be.

A small amount of silage can be fed without impairing the bull's efficiency as a breeder.

A regular meeting of the Future Farmers of America was brought to order Monday noon by President Warren Perkins. The main speaker was Mr. Kenneth McGahey who spoke on "How to Study". Mr. Mc-Gahey brought out the point that a person must study after he gets out of school. He also told us how where, when and what to study.
Other speakers were Charles Ellison who gave a brief talk on privileges of the Ag basketball team, and John O'Connor who talked about the night school for young farmers. The meeting was adjourned at 12:30.

There will be a meeting of the out-of-school group of young farmers at the agriculture room, Monday, December 11 at 8 o'clock. Officers will be elected for the year and the program for the year will be discussed. All young farmers are urged to come.

they can pull together when they

With the regularity of the falling of the leaves in autumn, President Roosevelt about this time each year proclaims his desire to effect great economies in the cost of government, throws out a suggestion that taxes may be increased and dwells on the virtue of balancing the Federal budget as promptly as possible.

For several weeks such statements appear on the front page. There is much speculation to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt is turning to the "right" and that the wanton reckless spenders have been kicked out.
There is much conferring with financial officers and budget directors, with every move being reported as aimed at achieving great economies.

After a month or six weeks of this pleasant little game, Mr. Roosevelt tires of his economy efforts, approves a budget which asks for much more money than in the current year and then sends a message to Congress which says that his budget will be balanced next year. Meanwhile another two or three billions are added to the national debt.

This Year Follows Pattern

Events this year are following this pattern. Mr. Roosevelt has put out word that he proposes to make a determined effort to reduce what he is pleased to term the "ordinary" expenses of the Federal Government, although he warns that national defense expenditures necessarily must be increased.

Mr. Roosevelt likewise threw out the suggestion that perhaps taxes should be raised to meet this national defense increase—BUT, and it is an important BUT, he will leave that to the people to decide.
Of course that was a mere gesture, for, as Scripps-Howard newspapers said, it was like asking a man whether he wanted small-pox or double pneumonia.

Few observers around Washington believe that Mr. Roosevelt this year will achieve economies in Federal spending any more than he has in his last six budgets. Even New Dealers laugh now when Mr. Roosevelt commences his annual chant about economy.

Let's Have Courage

Their memories go back to all the wonderful statements he has made on the subject. They remember his appeal in July, 1932: "Let us have the courage to stop borrowing to meet continuing deficits". They remember his arousing words at Pittsburgh that year when he said: "I regard reduction in Federal spending as one of the most important issues of this campaign."

Mournfully, some of them remember the words to Congress in March, 1933 that "too often in recent history liberal governments have been wrecked on the rocks of loose fiscal policy". Mr. Roosevelt surely was correct in that statement as he has now demonstrated.

They also recall his frequent Budget Message statements predicting a balanced budget next year—next year which never comes. In 1934 he told Congress the budget estimates he submitted "show a small surplus of $13,869,779". Instead of a surplus the year ended with a deficit of $3,500,000,000.

Another Assurance Given

In his 1935 Budget Message, Mr.
Roosevelt was most hopeful. He said he was submitting a budget which balanced "except for expenditures to give work to the unemployed" and added that "if this budget received the approval of Congress, the country will henceforth have the assurance that, with the strict execution of this item, every current expenditure of whatever nature will be fully covered by our estimates of current receipts". The deficit for that fiscal year was $4,700,000,000.

In 1936 Mr. Roosevelt explaining his budget said "the item for relief remains", immediately adding "without that item the budget is in balance". The deficit for that year was $2,800,000,000.

In 1937 Mr. Roosevelt told Congress that "although we must continue to spend substantial sums to provide work for those whom industry has not yet absorbed, the 1937 budget is in balance; and, except for debt reduction of $401,515,000, it will remain in balance even if later on there are included additional expenditures of as much as $1,537,123,- 000 for recovery and relief."

"We expect, moreover, if improvment in economic conditions continues at the present rate," he continued, "to be able to attain in 1939 a completely balanced budget with full provisions for meeting the statutory requirements for debt reduction."

Three More Deficits

The deficit for that fiscal year was $1,500,000,000. But for the 1937 fiscal year it was $3,600,000,000 and for the current fiscal year the latest estimate places it at $3,300,- 000,000.

In other words, throughout this period when Mr. Roosevelt constantly was predicting—or even claiming —a balanced budget, he actually piled up deficits totaling some twenty billions of dollars. Some people call this four-flushing but that is a gentle name for it.

Certainly, it demonstrates that while we may expect a great deal of talk, trickery and juggling of arithmetic already we are now promised double bookkeeping to get us out of our troubles—little can be extracted in the way of real economy or sanity in fiscal policies as long as Mr. Roosevelt sits in the White House.

Steuben County Schools Active In Vocational Agriculture Work

The high schools of Steuben County rank among the leaders of the state in the number of schools offering vocational work in agriculture. Fifteen schools of the county are now equipped with Departments of Agriculture. These departments have a total registration of over 400 boys. Approximately 150 of these are boys in the freshman class. The number of schools offering this work has increased steadily since the first department was started at Prattsburg approximately 30 years ago with a registration of ten pupils.

Only those schools which have boys coming from farms offer this type of work. About 98 per cent of the boys come from farms while the rest either work on a neighbor's or a relative's farm.

Among the many activities which are carried on in the fall months by these boys is the attendance at the various fairs in their locality. All Steuben County's schools were represented at the New York State Fair this year. Eighty boys were in attendance from this county for one or more days at the state fair. Most of these boys spent two or more days attending the New York State Future Farmer program, judging various farm animals and farm produce. Many of the boys have individual exhibits at the state fair while certain schools have chapter exhibits in which the entire Agriculture Department participates. Among the winners in the judging events this year was Avoca, who won ninth in poultry, and Canisteo who secured thirteenth place in potato judging. Corning Northside won seventh place in the State Future Farmer Chapter contest, while they also secured nineteenth place in the chapter exhibition of their dairy herd improvement record sheets.

At the county fair in Bath the Agriculture Departments of the county had over 175 entries. In addition to this number some of the boys exhibited under 4-H which would make the total entries at the county fair well over 200. Prize money was evenly distributed among all the schools of the county. Avoca High School won the largest amount at the county fair as their winnings amounted to over $80. Other schools winning appreciable amounts were Corning Northside, Prattsburg, Addison, Painted Post, Campbell and Troutsburg. The chapter contest winner was Corning Northside. Others who placed were Campbell, Prattsburg and Savona.

No local school fairs were held this year, this was due mainly to the fact that many of the projects of the boys were injured by drouth. Some schools did exhibit at the Chemung County fair, Campbell was represented at the World's Poultry Congress which was held at Cleveland during the summer, a white Plymouth Rock pullet of the Campbell F. F. A. department placed fifth in its class at the Congress, for which placing a plaque was won.

Many of the vocational agriculture pupils exhibited poultry at the large and successful poultry show recently staged by the Corning Chamber of Commerce. Many of the winners in this excellent show were F. F. A. boys.

The boys are now looking forward to their mid-winter rally which will be held at Canisteo in February and also the mid-winter state meeting at Ithaca which also will be held in February. Steuben County agricultural schools have always been active in the state association and this year promises to be an unusually

Potter Gas Company Cited By Commission

Albany, Nov. 27—A determination that the Potter Development Company, a public utility corporation subject to the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission, has just been made by the Commission. The Potter Development Company sells natural gas to the Corning Glass Works located in Corning.

From the facts set forth in a report of Commissioner George R. Lunn, which the commission approved, it is found that the supplying of gas by the Potter company to the Corning Glass Works constitutes an intrastate operation and that the Potter Development Company is a large gas corporation operating a gas plant and is a public utility subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission.

The glass works is supplied by means of a 9,000 foot pipe line owned by the Potter company which extends from a connection with the Allegheny Gas Company pipe line in New York State at Potter's Whiskey Creek regulator and meter station, to a pipe line of the Corning Glass Works just outside the City of Corning. The glass works is the only customer served by Potter company's pipe line. In reaching the glass works the Potter company line crosses one state and one county highway.

In Pennsylvania, Potter delivers gas into the pipe line of the North Penn Gas Company which conveys it to the pipe line of the Allegheny Gas Company, the two pipe lines meeting in Pennsylvania, near the New York State boundary. A portion of the gas which Potter delivers in Pennsylvania to the North Penn gas company's pipe line contends is transported for it for the use of the Corning Glass Works by the North Penn Gas Company pipe line and the Allegheny Gas Company's pipe line, at an agreed price. The remaining gas delivered by Potter in Pennsylvania to the pipe line of the New Penn Gas Company, and in turn to the Allegheny Gas Company, is sold on delivery to the North Penn Gas Company's line. The gas which is sold and the gas which Potter contends is transported for the use of the Corning Glass Works is mingled together in transit.

Smith Cow High in Southern Steuben DHIA—Kilmer Herd Leads

The Southern Steuben Dairy Herd Improvement Association reports 858 cows on test from 32 herds tested by Robert S. Drake, supervisor in charge. Edwin C. Smith (Tuscarora farm) led with high cow for butterfat production. This fine purebred Ayrshire, Senators Katy, produced 1617 pounds of milk containing 66.3 pounds of butterfat. Neil Kilmer of Addison tops the association with high cow for milk production. This grade Holstein produced 1830 pounds of milk and 58.6 pounds of butterfat. Two cows produced over 60 pounds of butterfat: Edwin C. Smith (1) and A. E. Scudder (1).

The following members of the association have cows meeting honor roll requirements (1200 pounds of milk or 40 pounds of butterfat): C. A. Stewart & Son 12, Edwin C. Smith (Tuscarora farm) 5, Edwin C. Smith (Goodhue farm) 1, Stuart & M. Kane, 4, B. Vastbinder, 5, E. H. Ackerson, 2, R. R. Decker, 3, A. E. Scudder & Son, 15, Neil Kilmer, 7, Paul Bros., 3, J. S. Wagner, 6, Robert Dann, 27, Harold S. Episcopal Men Meet This Thursday Night

Poultrymen Launch Series of Conferences

First of the series of winter meetings organized by the poultry committee of the Steuben County Farm Bureau will be held at Bath Wednesday, December 13, at which Professor C. M. Brice of the University of Hawaii, will discuss the poultry industry of the Pacific Islands.

Illustrated by colored pictures, the address will show views of Hawaii as well as to show the manner of poultry rearing in that semi-tropical country.

In announcing the series of meetings, Ernest Croft, Woodhull, chairman of the poultry committee, calls attention to the fact that poultry is a million dollar industry in Steuben county, states that the census lists 350,000 birds, one of the largest poultry populations in New York state.

The purpose of these meetings is to bring together the men and women who operate the vast enterprise, Mr. Croft states. Other topics included in the series which are to occur at about three-week intervals are marketing and disease.

Next Wednesday's meeting begins with dinner at twelve in the Bath Grange Hall. The meeting is open to the public.

Woodhull High Basketeers Fall Before Aggies

Frank Finnerty's Addison Aggies defeated the Woodhull High School varsity on the old gym floor Tuesday night by a 24 to 10 score.

Advice to Veterans Going to Washington To File Claims

Veterans going to Washington to present claims before the Board of Veterans Appeals are warned by Frank T. Hines, administrator of Veterans Affairs, that they should not come to Washington unless fully able to maintain themselves for quite some time in financial independence. Word of this action has been received by local Legion service officers.

Many veterans feel they can expedite their claim by appearing in person before the Board. However, many times additional information, verification of records and other data is required and which requires considerable time to gather.

Most of the material can be handled through district officers just as quickly as by personal appearance and at much less expense. There are no industrial jobs in Washington and governmental jobs are through Civil Service, so a veteran cannot get something to support himself, according to Mr. Hines.

Addison Fish and Game Club Is 10 Years Old—Fills Vital Need

Conservation club promotes interest in fishing and hunting and preservation of wild life—Has had interesting career under various officers — Some interesting bits of its history.

One of the active organizations in Addison and one which absorbs the energies of several hobbyists is the Addison Fish and Game Club, which next year will observe its 10th anniversary.

The origin of the club, however, dates back to 10 years ago this month when it was the custom of several local men to gather with Henry Shelansky and talk over conservation problems and fish and game resources of this vicinity.

It was 10 years ago this fall that he secured the cooperation of seven men with definite fish and game club ideas and with this nucleus they formed the Addison Fish and Game Club. The organizers were Mr. Shelansky, the late K. E. Whitmore, Attorney H. Varn, Fred Frost, Maurice Tyson, Edwin J. Morris, Rathbun Stewart and Ray Towner.

This group held a series of preliminary meetings late in 1929 and then set a goal of five members to be secured for each member of the then existing organization. The group had discussed conservation clubs, Izaak Walton leagues, fish and game clubs and many other types of organizations and decided with the diversified conservation and sporting groups here it would be better to organize a fish and game club. Too, at that time there were no county federations as known today and no state wide organization to lobby for conservation interests and the interests of the hunters and fishermen of the state.

First Meeting

The first organized meeting was held in the office of Attorney Hugh Varn. The men were really interested in their objective of 40 members and in a short space of time Mr. Shelansky saw his brain child take shape as an active, progressive conservation club.

Charter Members

The official formation was in 1930 and the charter members were Mr. Shelansky, William McCarthy, Lynn Taylor, Ira Halmnen, Jake Kress, Floyd Gillespie, Lewis E. Handy, Mr. Tyson, Mr. Morris, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Towner, Mr. Frost, Mr. Varn and Mr. Whitmore. The club held a membership supper in True Gymnasium and signed over 80 members at that time. M. E. Snyder, Corning, was the speaker.

The first meeting for which there are recorded minutes was held on March 7, 1930. The group at that meeting chose their officers as follows: President, L. E. Handy; vice president, Floyd Gillespie; secretary-treasurer, K. E. Whitmore.

The finances of the club of course were non-existent so that each member of the board of directors loaned $4 to the club for the purchase of trap equipment which was first placed on the LeMunyan farm, Tuscarora road.

Among the real conservation projects undertaken by the club was the hatching of pheasant eggs received from the state Conservation Department and the feeding of corn to the birds during the winter months.

Some changes in the official family were made the following year when Lynn Taylor was elected vice president, Edwin Morris, financial secretary and Carlton Crane, treasurer. Mr. Handy was reelected president and Mr. Whitmore, secretary. A trap shoot was held and the local streams and woods were stocked with fish and game.

In the year 1932 the club really branched out for it had become of age and members were becoming more familiar with conservation work. The trap was moved from the LeMunyan farm to the Vastbinder farm. Edwin Morris was elected president; Henry Shelansky was chosen vice president, K. E. Whitmore reelected secretary; Gordon Sprague financial secretary and Joseph Tobin, treasurer. A banquet was held on April 6. The club also placed 119 birds received from the state, 218 birds were raised from eggs and 12 cans of trout were placed in streams.

First Public Shoot

The club went in for their first field trials and shoot on the Vastbinder farm on October 16. And on the proceeds of that shoot and meet the club raised enough funds to get a real good start and to make application to become a member of the County Federation, to which they still belong.

Dan J. Colbert was elected president in 1933 and under his administration the club achieved a greater permanency than heretofore existed. The trap and skeet shooting outfits were moved to McCarthy Field, their present location, the annual trials and shoot was held on October 8, 1933 and the second annual dinner was held December 13, 1933. A fish and game stocking program was carried out on a larger scale than in previous years, for as membership grew so grew game allotments and interest. Other officers during this year were: Edwin Morris, vice president; Thomas Hovey, financial secretary; Joe Tobin, treasurer and K. E. Whitmore, secretary. Mr. Colbert served in some official capacity in the club from his election as president in 1933 until his death last year and was always in the forefront of any movement for the advancement or betterment of the club.

Burdette Beers took the presidential reins in 1934 with the assistance of vice president, Edwin Morris; financial secretary, Tom Hovey; treasurer, Joe Tobin and secretary, Dan J. Colbert, a position he held until his death. Mr. Whitmore died during this year and the club lost one of its most active members and one to whom any of the members could turn for information relative to club activities. His death brought deep gloom to his fellow club members. Highlight of the year was increased membership.

One of the long active members in the club was honored by being chosen president for 1935 in the person of Harry Fritts. Those who served with him were: Vice president, Burdette Beers; financial secretary, John B. Davis; treasurer, John W. Russ; secretary, Wyatt Bebout.

Llewellyn Robbins, one of those honored at a testimonial dinner recently was chosen to head the club in 1936 with the following as aides: Vice president, Harry Fritts; secretary, Dan J. Colbert; financial secretary, John B. Davis and treasurer, John W. Russ.

Club House Built

Attorney Hugh Varn became president in 1937 and it was in his administration that the club house was planned and constructed on the McCarthy Field. The annual banquet was held in the Grange Hall on October 3, 1937 and a review of the year revealed the work that had been done on the club. Other officers of the club were: Vice president, Llewellyn Robbins; financial secretary, John B. Davis; treasurer, Wendell Hewson and secretary Dan J. Colbert.

The year 1938 was a banner year for great use was made of the club house. A great deal of work was done on improving, strengthening and insulating the building, adding porches where needed and putting in kitchen equipment. William McCarthy, charter member of the club and donor of the field was chosen to lead the members in 1938. He was assisted by vice president, Peter Laftkas; secretary, Francis Riley and treasurer, George M. Smith.

Throughout all this time membership was gradually increasing, more game was being cared for, a treasury was gradually being developed and the club was becoming a power in the county federation.

Vernon Addit is the present presiding officer with Paul Owens of Woodhull as vice president; L. W. Barr as secretary and George M. Smith as treasurer. A kitchen has been added to the club house and electric lights installed by members.

Also during the past year two pheasant yards have been built to keep young birds until liberation time. Two outside toilets have been constructed. Trap and skeet outfits have been repaired and are in good condition.

Virgil Hussey Speaks to Parent-Teachers Association

Superintendent Virgil Hussey of the 4th district, Jasper, Greenwood and Troupsburg Central Schools was speaker at the November meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association held Tuesday evening in the school auditorium.

President, Ray L. Morton, presided during the business session after which the meeting was given over to the program committee.

Miss Mary Hoar. A talk on "Correcting Speech Difficulties" was given by Mrs. Geraldine Brown, teacher of the primary department.

This talk was followed by Mr. Hussey, who gave a very interesting address on "Relationship Between the Home, Church and School". The home, church and school were used as the three units of life and education was considered as life itself.

He compared pessimists of centuries ago with those of today and proved how civilization, still had progressed and held high hopes for the future as long as homes, churches and the schools are secure. He emphasized the fact that there must be cooperation of the three units or civilization would go down also that the home training of today is not what it used to be due to the fact that parents fail to teach their children the old fashioned faith of our forefathers and the Puritan training. Mr. Hussey advocates teaching practical and interesting things in the class rooms which can be used in later life instead of following the text books too closely. He also suggests that the church and the school work hand in hand.

Mr. Hussey's closing remarks were directed to the parents, saying that they should cooperate with the teachers in discipline and that it is the duty of parents to support the school by attending school functions and not shift their individual responsibility to others for individual responsibility could conquer the impossible. Remember to cooperate.

Refreshments were served at the home of the meeting. A good attendance was present.

Long Illness Ends In Death of Mrs. Fred Sutliff

Death closed a beautiful life and ended a long period of suffering for Mrs. Fred Sutliff, Brooks Avenue, who died early Sunday morning, December 3, 1939 in Sayre Hospital, where she had been a patient for two weeks.

Mrs. Sutliff has been in ill health for several years owing to a heart ailment, but has only been restricted in her activities for the past two years. Her condition became so grave two weeks ago that she was taken to the hospital. She had been a long and patient sufferer and few knew the intense pain she bore.

Mrs. Sutliff was born Grace Chamberlin, daughter of the late William and Mary Mowry Chamberlin in Knoxville, Pa., on October 13, 1876. She attended schools in Knoxville. After completing her education she became the bride of Arthur Curtis of Mansfield. His death came shortly after. She became the bride of Fred Sutliff of Addison on June 17, 1900 and they have since made their home here.

She took an active interest in the affairs of the Eastern Star and at one time served as Matron of the local chapter and was also a member of the Steuben County Matrons' Association. She was an ardent member of the Presbyterian Church and the Missionary Society connected therewith.

Mrs. Sutliff leaves to mourn her, her husband, a son Earl Curtis of Binghamton and a daughter, Mrs. Myra Aldrich of Rochester, two brothers, Benjamin Chamberlin of St. Petersburg, Fla., and William Chamberlin of Knoxville and a sister, Mrs. Charles Edwards, Elmira. Two grand children, Curtis and Grace Ellen Aldrich who lived with her also survive.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the home. The Rev. John V. Axtell of the Presbyterian Church officiated. Eastern members attended in a body. Burial was in Addison Rural Cemetery.

The bearers were: Edwin C. Smith, Claude E. Martin, Horace G. Crane, Charles L. Crane, Walter M. Goff and Ray S. Brown.
